WWF Undisputed Championship- G1

SINGLES MATCH to determine the WWF UNDISPUTED CHAMPION. Challenger finalized by a #1 Contendership match during 18Feb02 edition of RAW (5RAW Triple H v Kurt Angle) after two previous determinations (Angle, 6NWO 17Feb02; HHH, 6RR 20Jan02) .

Table with columns: Name, Manager, Date, Match Type, Time, Opponent, and Performance Notes. Includes entries for Chris Jericho and Triple H.

Table with columns: Name, Pedigree, Date, Match Type, Time, Opponent, and Performance Notes. Includes entries for Triple H.

JERICO VS. TRIPLE H ANALYSIS

Have to consider the value of Jericho keeping the titles, but the question is, has the WWF considered it? Early thought had Triple H winning this one and it is hard to argue, after all, it would culminate a return from an eight month layoff. Still, the Stephanie factor's magnitude is uncertain. Odds-on, Steph is getting involved, probably on multiple occasions. Also consider the conspiracy theories regarding Steph and Triple H being in cahoots. That aside, recent, while declining in quality, argue for good efforts under a good pace. Match should be enjoyable, but looks to be overshadowed by the Rock-Hogan event, but until post time, you never can tell. Triple digits in order maybe?

VARIABLE MATCH ODDS LINE

REGAL VS. VAN DAM ANALYSIS

The contrast of styles will be apparent. Early thought has RVD taking this one, and one might be inclined to agree given Regal's shady title reign. The contrast should give a nicely balanced match and aside from a few anomalies, recent involving these two have proven a good watch. Look for a pace pickup at about 3/4-7/8 amidst some steady, solid action throughout.

BILLY/CHUCK DUDLEYZ APA HARDYZ ANALYSIS

VARIABLE MATCH ODDS LINE

The elimination rules will keep things slower than the melees of past tag team wars. Hardy and the Dudleyz may be too obvious. A.P.A. may steal this one, but Billy and Chuck have short longshot odds to win. Big spots should be moderately numerous and match may possibly weaken near finish, but such might be worth it given what might come beforehand.

JAZZ VS. TRISH VS. LITA ANALYSIS

Trish has improved very much in recent months so expect her and Jazz to give fine efforts. Somewhat concerned with Lita who has yet to post a strong effort following her layoff, but what if she just needed those three to return to form. Hometown venue has to favor Trish, but popular readings favor Lita. Something relatively short and steadied would suffice, but do not be too surprised if something quite good comes out of this because all three have demonstrated potential at some time.

Some fair marks in matches involving these two. Page has shown capable of putting on a good performance and Christian is no slouch. Solid match is not out of reach and they should not disappoint so long as one is not expecting something spectacular, although weirder things have happened. ROCK VS. HOGAN ANALYSIS

One shared match between these two and it was quite entertaining. Though Hogan pinned the Rock, it should not speak much for this affair. It is very viable to have either one win. Watch for the n W o to make its presence known on the outside late. Rock has produced some good marks this year and Wrestlemania should help bring out his best. Still, Wrestlemania has not been kind to Rock in recent years. Hogan should also be able to pull out a strong effort in the Wrestlemania atmosphere. Whether he does or not is left to speculation, but give him the benefit of the doubt if at all uncertain. If Austin's match precedes this, and that is probable, look for him down the line as well. Maybe a triple digit candidate outright?

AUSTIN VS. HALL ANALYSIS

Austin has been involved in the best singles match of the year and Hall's tab has been steadily improving, so the hope for this match is quite good. Can't see Hall winning this cleanly, but can't see this ending cleanly either. Nash should be lurking on the outside early on. Hogan may also get his share of the interference in. Lots of brawling in order here. Looking for a sub-moderate pace to start and steady pickup about 1/8 before the finish. Triple digits here may not be out of range if Hall can draw a very strong effort. Possible.

ANGLE VS. KANE ANALYSIS

These two have provided very entertaining and strong contests in recent times, so why not here, especially considering that those great matches were on TV. Also note that this is no ordinary pay per view. Look for that lengthened anklelock to be applied, and a tombstone would be a nice touch of relative nostalgia. Given recent, expectations are high. Easily a triple digit prospect if given enough time to shine.

EDGE VS. BOOKER T ANALYSIS

Two recent involving these two were semi-solid so this could prove good. Can't completely buy the build up, however. Pacing looks to stay above par by a little for the most part and action should be balanced if recent are any indication.

FLAIR VS. UNDERTAKER ANALYSIS

A brawlfest to be sure, and with the no DQ rule, Vince should be out and about to get his turn in. Is David Flair showing up out of the question? If Flair could put on a good street fight against McMahon and Undertaker comes to the top of his game here, then something very enjoyable is in order. Look for pace to be generally slow with control of the match in blocks rather than back and forth. Against Flair, however, is that UT is undefeated at Wrestlemania, and cannot see anyone breaking the streak, but if anyone were to do it, the Nature Boy would be him.
